Project Technology Zend Framework with MVC Architecture

Voxsun is a Canada based organization which provides the VOIP services on phones. VoxSun was born from a simple idea of two experienced entrepreneurs: offering unlimited mobile package at an affordable price and that to be by keeping the current provider.

I was involved in building the brand Voxsun and did an extensive brand analysis which resulted into the logo and mascot for the Voxsun. Logo was the biggest design challenge as we provided around 25 different options with 8 iterations on two chosen options. Once brand was set, we were involved in an extensive Information Architecture and Wireframes to ensure that a seamless usability is provided and maximum information can be accommodated on each page. I developed this website on Zend framework with MVC architecture.

Note: Client has changed this to Joomla CMS now because of some customization issues which he was facing at his end.

SECURITY FEATURES

We encourage you to compare our security features with competitors'. We offer individual door alarms and passcode in and out via computerized gates. If your unit is opened without your passcode being entered at the gate, it trips the alarm. Also, tracking passcodes in and out allows us to watch for suspicious activity. Coupled with video surveillance cameras and on site management, we believe our site offers you leading security features.

CONVENIENCE

This means accessing your storage or parking space at your convenience, not ours. Many storage and parking facilities charge an extra fee for accessing their site after business hours, but not us!
